— Dutch foreign Minister Joseph Luns said today the U.S. handling of the Middle East problem showed a "serious lack of objectivity."

Addressing the lower house of parliament, Mr. Luns said:

"It appeared that there were fundamental differences betwen the policies of the U.S. and the Western free world.
Those differences only became acute at the moment in which the U.S. joined Russia in the U.N. to launch an action against breel, Britain, and France."

WASHINGTON, Thursday (INA).—U.S. officials knew in advance of the Israel attack on Egypt, the "U.S. News and World Report" said in its eutrent issua today.

It said that N hours before the strack, and 48 hours before Britain and France in tervened, a "iop secret" report from the Central Intelligence agency was delivered in writing to the White House, It stated. Israel will not attack Jordan. Israel will attack in the Sues Canal area."

This document climaxed a whole series of warnings from the C.L.A., all pointing in the same direction. It did not specify the exact dates nor did it for creat the Angio-French uiting timatum of October 30 to Egypt and Israe.

The report predicting the actual attack was what is known as "ultimate distillation of intelligence"—in other cwords, top priority. President Eisenhower himself decides which officials get reports in this category. Such documents are not widely circulated. It is probable that only four men, the President and the heads of the State Department, armed forces, and the C.L.A., knew the actual contents of this particular paper.

Pive Kilometre Wall

A five-kilometre long wall, which was discovered surrounding the wall of Kadesh Barnea, may have been built together with the fortress and probably aimed at preventing nomads from making inroads on the fertile valley. The fortress itself was both a military and administrative centre, holding "a few hundred" officials and soldiers. Under Persian rule Jews returned to the fortress, this time using it for residential purposes. Dating from this period is a large storage jar inscribed with the Hebrew letter shin followed by the number 10. The "Shin" as a rule indicates either shemen (oil) or shekel (a measure).

The Australian team, clocking 45.6 seemads, brobs the world record for the 4x110 years weemen's relay. The efficial world record is 45.8 sees set by an East German team last July. The Australian team was Norma Crocket. P. Melick Betty Cuthbert and Enricy Strickland. Britain's Team, finishing second, also beat the official world mark, with a time of 45.7 secs.

The American team set a world record in the two miles relay with a time of 7 mins 25.0 secs, beating the efficial mark of 7:273 established by a University team in Los Argeles in 1954. Running for the U.S. today were Gerald Walters. Ren Burrier, Arne Bowell and Tom Courtney.

Another world record went when the American guartette of King, Andy Stanfield, Baker and Bobby Morrow clocked 1 min. 28.8 secs for the 4x200 yards relay. This beat the official world mark of 1:24.0 by a University of South Carolina team in Los Angeles in 1949.

A fourth world record was broken when the Australian girl sprinters, Mariene Mathews, Norma Crocket, Fleur Mellor- and Betty Cuthbert clocked 1 min 30.3 secs for the 4:220 yards relay. This was 3.5 secs faster than the offitial world record of 1:39.9 secs by a British team in London in 1953, and 1/10ths of a second better than the 1:36.5 secs. by an East German team in Berjin last July, awaiting ratification.

The contest proper is between the men's teams only. The women's events do not count towards the results.

A fifth world record crumbled when the Commonwealth team ran the 4x1 mile relay in 16 mins 26.4 secs, compared with the world mark of 18:41 secs by a British team in London in 1953. The Commonwealth team was Murray Halberg (New Zealand), Neville Scott (New Zealand), Landy (Australia). They finished well shead of the Americans. be given by the U.N. One cannot escape the conclusion that in the negotiations with Nasser the U.N. is adopting a policy of appeasement towards a military dictator. The nature of the Assembly resolution may have helped to bring this about. But the U.N. authorities have a duty which goes beyond an attempt to get implementation of the formal text of a resolution; or, as in the present case, of one or more paragraphs of it in a case where to respect the whole text appears troublesome.

The proceedings of the Assembly at the beginning of November not only called for an unconditional with drawal of British. French and Israel troops. They also called for a settlement of the question of freedom of passage through the Canal and for a ban on the introduction of additional arms into the area. These have apparently been overlooked. The reason may well be that the U.N. feared that it would be unable to introduce its Emergency Force into Egypt unless Nasser was convinced that this move would benefit him alone, and they were fearful of a rebuff.

Good Works

Judith Oren of Hatsor has contributed three works, two of them landscapes of which "Ein Hed" is lively but her best work is a painting of "Mother and Child," rather dark in colour but very nicely composed. Haim Bergal of She'ar Hagolan has a charming black-and-white "But of Reeds," and his oil painting "Night on Dawar" is agreeable in colour and surface tenture. He is someone of whose work I would like to see more.

contradictory, both in his work and in his life.

Adventurous Look

Three books have already been w r i t t e n centering around him, and two, at least, of the authors made no claim to have pinned him down: He remained "the Monster," the intellectual cowboy, the director "with iron whima."

Whatever the real Buston, the legends are well established his appearance must have helped. He looks just the sort of person who would most appeal to himself in a crowd scene: tall and angular, dressed for the stables (however shiny the occasion) with a graceful dough end a face that might when tired, belong to an Irlahman who missed the turning.

On the set, his manner earns the devotion of actors and technicians: "Once more. That was very good. You can do it, kid." From him, simple statements acquire dramatic importance.

Huston was born on August 5, 1906, in Nevada, Missouri, the son of the fine character actor, Walter Huston. His parents divorced when he was small: his boyhood was erratic, shuttling between the two, touring with his father.

Risky Cure

BRIDGE

Huston returned to Holty-wood after the war with a big reputation. In 1868 he produced "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre" which won him an Academy Award and other distinctions. Like "The Malters Paleon," it was about unserupulous adventurers, and followed what was to become with him a recognizable theme: the pursuit of an ambition which is thwarted, fronteally, at the moment of reddingent.

fail to understand the connectorate. These three groups are largely interchangeable, but no conspiracy is imputed to the members of the power elite. These men, it is pointed out, stand apart socially; they know and trust each other. The similarity in their background and training makes for a similarity of interests.

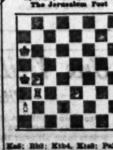

The rich, who have always been influential members of society, are no longer the old aristocracy (or its American equivalent) but the new products of corporate finance. The generals and admirals—called "the military ascendancy"—have come to power only recently, as the result of the end of isolationism and the development of nuclear fission. At the end of World War II and the Korean War, generals often acted as ambassadors. In an economy that is continuously preparing for war, many warlords have become corp or at ic n chiefs. Leading administrative posts in the Government have been filled not by career civil servants but by big business executives, generals and admirals. The elected political representatives of the people wield only secondary power. There is little live political struggle. Instead, there is administration from above, and the political vacuum below."

surge of Jewish national feeling, it was largely due to the general nationalist revival and was only partly provoked by anti-Semitism.

However, the Jewish awakening was more especially connected with that of the Semitic peoples as a whole, of whom the Jews form a part. Drawing an analogy from the world of plants, the author points out that when a parent-tree withers, all its transplanted shoots — wherever they may be, even at the other end of the earth, in different soils and disaimllar clim ates — fade at the other end of the earth, in different soils and disaimllar clim ates — fade at the same time. And when the parent-tree recovers new life, all its offshoots everywhere likewise bloom again. It is no coincidence, therefore, that Jews and Arabs have risen simultaneously from their centuries-old shumber.

is like. But the unwillingly caught glimpse is thrust saide again.

"A more setfish, self-centired, materialistic generation has never been born into this unfortunate country. All you want is to cultivate your own gardens. You really don't give a damn for anyone but yourselves, do you?" This is her lover in moments of escaperation. But he goes back to Prague, and she marries a more suitable young admirer from the Home Office, in church, with orange bioseoms.

Miss Lessing can write, and this story of a first love affair, played out within a few weeks of a hot London summer, is readable and in its acid characteristics, sometimes amusing. It is not convincing, however, to this reader as regards the main point — the post-war generalistics are general with a summer, is readable and in its acid characteristics, sometimes amusing. It is not convincing, however, to this reader as regards the main point — the post-war generalistics are properly and summer in the post-war generalistics.
